Dear Valued Customers and Business Partners,

We are excited to announce a significant milestone in the evolution of our company. Effective 17th May 2023, Agilrom Scientific SRL will be changing its name to Altium International SRL.

This decision is part of our strategic growth plan and reflects our commitment to better serve you and adapt to the evolving business landscape. The new name, Altium International SRL, captures our vision for the future and represents our ongoing commitment to innovation, excellence, and customer satisfaction. We believe this change will further strengthen our position in the market and enable us to better align our brand with our core values and objectives.

Our office address, contact numbers, and company registration details, including Bank Accounts, will all remain the same. Rest assured, and our dedicated team will continue to provide you with the same level of professionalism and reliability you have come to expect from us.

You can continue to use our existing mail addresses for now, and they will remain active during the transition. Any correspondence sent to the old mail addresses will still reach us and be handled promptly. However, please start updating your records and using the new mail addresses as soon as they become available.

As we transition to our new name, we kindly request you to update your records accordingly. All future communications, invoices, contracts, and other business interactions should reflect the new company name, Altium International SRL.
